Chapter 1 by Lazer Nebula

As I woke up in a bed to unfamiliar for me to recognize where I was, memories started flooding back to me every hug, kiss. Every word we spoke to each other, every I love you, I need you and I miss you came back to me like a sucker punch and it took me awhile to realize where I was...a Hospital.

I guess I should start at the beginning everything started over the summer I had started playing football for my middle school, it was cool getting the recognition and the popularity but when school started I was finally in the 8th grade and it was awesome I met new people who were really cool but this story isn't about them so I won't go into that much detail everything was going great I even got injured but that wasn't that good. At one of the football games I got too go out and watch the end of the seventh grade game and out the corner of my eye I saw her this beautiful girl with black hair and brown eyes. She was perfect she had a beautiful smile, body, face and I knew from right then and there I knew I loved her. I went up to her and said hello but she didn't answer she just dazed at me with her beautiful eyes. I walked away and at that moment i knew that I would do anything to have her in my life. Time went by I got a girlfriend then lost a girlfriend but then someone came up to me I knew who she was and she told me something "She thinks you're not" "Including the idiot I was back then I said yes" and she said "Chloe" I asked her to point her finger at the girl I met at the football game. She was in my homelase and I didn't even realize it, one day I finally but her ex was being a punk to her so I stuck up for her and called her my sister in the process and that's where it all started.

We were incredibly close we called each other Big bro and lil sis, we talked everyday people asked if we were something but we said no but secretly I really wished we did this girl was the most beautiful girl I have ever known. It was like I was living a dream a football player starting his career but also balancing an amazing relationship. Time went buy and it became November the last day of school before the break I had just broke up with my girlfriend at the time but I always had Chloe. Over the break we had talked and talked and talked but one night she called me and I was really sad but she brought me back up. During the phone call I sang to her and we talked all night the best conversation I had ever had with her during the all night conversation we had talked about something that would change me forever a relationship she had opened up to me and I could tell we were both nervous but we knew what we wanted she asked how I really felt about her and I said I love you in a different way but she felt the same way. I told her that when we got back to school that I would give her the biggest hug and would probably kiss her. A couple days later we met up in this hallway and right then in there I looked her straight in her beautiful eyes and I got lost in them; I gained my strength and kissed her.

When we went down to the gym a friend of ours named josh asked if we were something and we said no but after school I finally asked her out and she said yes. Each day we met up in this hallway at our school and for the 15 minutes we spent together each morning nothing else mattered it was just me and a beautiful girl named Chloe. Each class we had we sat together and held hands sometimes I even kissed her hands. I made sure she knew I loved her I made sure she knew that she was everything to me and nothing was as important and she was. We both loved each other extremely nothing could separate us, each day our love became stronger and stronger the love got to the point where we started experimenting we touched each other under the table in the lunchroom in the most intimate ways. One day we got in a mood we sexted for hours a day each day it was something new "are you wet" "let me see it" one day before the winter exams Chloe had shared her study guide with me and I got in trouble for cheating on a 60% grade. Our principal wanted to go through our messages because he knew we had been talking while. They were going through our messages and they saw it our plans was miserable I had lost her, everything, everyone. We weren't allowed to talk but we did anyway each night at 11 o'clock and we talked and talked and talked. The 45 day flew by made new friends, met new people, saw people who knew and Chloe. After I got back I was told we couldn't talk to each other we still did

We started doing things we tried meeting up whenever we could at 11 o'clock. One night we met up but this was different from any other time we were both in a fiery, romantic mood for each other she told me to meet her at the bridge on Patton Chapel Rd. I grabbed my car keys and ran to my Sonata but it was out of gas so I went back put the keys up and started running nothing stopping me mind racing, heart pounding. Nothing slowed me down, the whole where there I had who and what I was running for in my mind. Why. Because she was everything to me and I wouldn't stop until she knew that when I got there I fell to my knees and screamed her name as loud as I could. And she screamed back. I ran up to her and I gave her the biggest hug I had ever given her and then and there I got lost in her eyes.

I stood there for a while realizing all I had given to this girl and all this girl had given to me we went to a place in front of the elementary school by our middle school. It was a concrete pad in front of a wooded area our own sanctuary, as we were walking to the pad we talked about children and getting married we named our future kids Sam-Austin and Katrina. Once we got to the pad I grabbed her hips and pulled her in close and we started kissing which soon escalated. Slowly I unbuttoned her jeans and pulled them down, then she slowly undid my pants and pulled them down. Slowly I pulled it out and she took off her underwear, I was on top and she was on bottom at, it was passionate, a steamy romance we stayed outside all night and nothing and I mean nothing was the same again. I woke up by cars driving past I looked over and saw her shivering I got up immediately and wrapped my arms around her to keep her warm I asked what time it was and she said 6 o'clock we both stood up I looked straight in her eyes and kissed her like I would never see her again. I ran home and my mom was wondering what I was doing and I said I went for a walk and fell asleep in the dirt. I got to school, teachers getting on my nerves and seeing people I haven't seen in forever. One day I was walking to lunch and saw her in the office crying, with a police officer and our principle standing and I realize that love is all that's left to lose at this point, after the school day I went home and waited I promised her I would try care if we would freeze, starve or die I just had to be there for her. We met up where we always did the bridge by patton chapel but it was different there was an electricity in the air, an uneasiness in the atmosphere we both felt it we knew what it meant, everything had added up too this every kiss, every hug, every I love you, I need you and I miss you, and there she was, in the dead of night as pretty as could be she wasn't dressed like you would be if you ran away she was wearing skinny jeans a t-shirt and a sweater, I was wearing sweatpants a hoodie and I packed a winter jacket but I figured out that that wouldn't be enough but it was too late to go back and get more clothes and maybe some food but there was no time. That same romantic atmosphere was there and we wanted it... bad slowly we both got undressed, she was cold I could feel her body pressed up against mine slowly I started rubbing up and down slowly I pulled down her panties and kissed slowly going up stomach, neck, lips. it was hot steamy making sure she felt every thrust every stroke, kiss. when we got done she was shaking and she could barely walk I had to hold her. We couldn't make it too the highway which was our original plan but she couldn't walk so I took her into a wooded area and we stayed there the night. BANG! I shot up tears flowing down my face, I had a nightmare that she was shot swiftly she wrapped her arms around me, I had never felt so safe in my life. everything felt right. I was sitting there in the dead of night with a beautiful girl by my side nothing was the same every tear, hug and kiss meant something to the both of us. I woke up starving and cold she was hungry and cold as well I decided that it would be a good time to go get food and we left We never made it to where we were going we were found before we got there. A we sit there in the police station the last thing I said "I love you"

As I woke up in a bed to unfamiliar for me to recognize where I was, memories started flooding back to me every hug, kiss. Every word we spoke to each other, every I love you, I need you and I miss you came back to me like a sucker punch and it took me awhile to realize where I was...a Hospital...without her...alone.
